Refugee Policy: A Comparison of Canada and the USA

International Conference
Sunday May 27th — Wednesday May 30, 1990
Glendon Campus, York University

The Centre for Refugee Studies at York University and the Refugee Policy Group in Washington, D.C. are convening an international conference to compare Canada and US refugee policies.

The participants in the conference will include both researchers and those involved in policy formation in the United States and Canada. An attempt will be made to pair American and Canadian researchers in the preparation of papers.

The purpose is to focus on a select list of problems which are central to the policy concerns of both Canada and the United States and where they may have been different policies and programmes and/or different research results.

The conference will be organized around general sessions at which prepared papers will be discussed, a parallel series of workshops and meal-time round tables. It is hoped that scholars and policy makers can learn a great deal from a greater understanding of the refugee policies of the two countries.

For further information about this conference please contact Ann Watson at the Centre for Refugee Studies, 234 Administrative Studies Building York University, 4700 Keele Street, North York, Ontario, Canada M3J 1P3.
